When high school students consider studying abroad, some prefer to stay in their own country, while others dream of going overseas.

There are other options, too. Nowadays, more students are leaning towards studying abroad.

What's the reason for this? Some students are eager to explore new cultures and witness things they've never experienced before. Others are excited about tasting diverse cuisines and immersing themselves in different ways of life. Because of this, Because of this, they see studying abroad as an unforgettable journey.

However, some students worry about language barriers and getting lost in a foreign land. This can be intimidating and stressful.

Additionally, concerns about the expenses of studying abroad weigh on their minds. Consequently, they feel that organizing a study trip overseas might be too daunting and costly.
